GRACED WITH GOLD: GERBER'S ULTRA DUAL FLUSH™ WINS THE 2007 PRODUCT OF THE YEAR AWARD
Annual Award Presented by *Consulting-Specifying Engineer

WOODRIDGE, Ill. (January 2008) – The 2007 “MVP” Product of the Year is the Ultra Dual Flush™ toilet from Gerber. The award is given annually by Consulting Specifying Engineer after products are selected by a panel of engineering experts and then voted on-line by readers of CSE. The high efficiency, low consumption Ultra Dual Flush™ is certified by WaterSense and GreenSpec. It uses 40 percent less water per flush than a traditional 1.6 gallon toilet. It was also selected for the CSE “Perfect 10” Gold Award in the Plumbing Category.

“We are honored by this recognition as it exemplifies Gerber’s commitment to advancing the plumbing fixtures’ industry with innovative, high performance water conserving technology and products,” comments Ron Mudge, marketing and new categories manager for Gerber.

The Ultra Dual Flush™ design features a dual action handle that allows usage of either 1.1 or 1.6 gallons per flush depending on the discharge needed. This High Efficiency Toilet (HET) technology conserves the amount of water required per flush by pressurizing air inside the toilet tank, which forces water into then out of the bowl.

Consulting-Specifying Engineer magazine annually awards the Gold “Perfect 10” Product of the Year award in 10 system categories including plumbing, lighting, HVAC, electrical, controls and building automation, fire protection, communication and security, and power systems. Silver and bronze awards are also presented in each division.
